Girl Scout Day at Salt Lake's Downtown Farmers Market

SALT LAKE CITY, UT . August 29, 2011 . Come join Girl Scouts and local farmers for the First Annual Girl Scout Day at the Downtown Farmers Market. Bianca Windward, a Senior Girl Scout working on her Girl Scout Gold Award, has organized this event to help support our local farmers and food producers by demonstrating all the great meals that can be made with local products. There will be kids activities and tours around the Farmers Market.

By working with Slow Food Utah and the Downtown Alliance, Bianca has arranged this fun-filled day for all! Bianca has been working on this project since the beginning of June 2011, inspiring people to use local food to make delicious meals. She has done this by personally testing recipes, then giving them to farmers to share with their customers. The recipes are also put on her blog belocaliciousutah.blogspot.com.

Bianca's love of the Farmers Market and desire to educate people about the importance of healthy eating and using local products inspired this project. There will be games and a scavenger hunt for younger kids, and tours to meet our local food producers for those who want to join in the fun. The public is encouraged to visit Bianca at the Girl Scouts booth.
