16 About My Troop

“Girl Scouts opened up a world of amazing opportunities for me and my family. From building an Estes rocket to earn my science badge to watching my mother lead a troop for my younger sister, this organization has given me so many meaningful family moments to cherish. I’m proud to see this legacy live on in families like yours and excited for all the fun, learning, and adventure you’ll have in the year ahead.”

Hey There, Girl Scout!

This is your space to write or draw your hopes and dreams for the coming year in Girl Scouts.

This year, I’m excited to...

What Girl Scouts Is All About

Since 1912, Girl Scouts of the USA has given girls the tools to lead, break barriers, and create positive change. Your G.I.R.L. (Go-getter, Innovator, Risk-taker, Leader)[™] is part of a legacy of girls and young women who dream big and do bigger. When you take the potential every girl has within her and add our girl-led, skill-building programming; unmatched leadership experiences; and caring adults whose networks can truly open doors, you get the power of Girl Scouting.

By Girls. For Girls. Everything your Girl Scout does—whether it’s climbing mountains, making her voice heard, or designing new technology—has been created especially for, and is tested by, girls.

Tomorrow’s Leaders Today. Your girl will develop a strong sense of self, demonstrate positive values, seek challenges, solve significant problems in her community, and establish healthy relationships. These aren’t just good qualities—they’re the leadership skills that will last a lifetime.

3-2-1...Action! At Girl Scouts, “Can I?” turns into “I will!” as your girl transforms her ideas into action, turns her questions into adventures, and grows her confidence through practice. And when she’s part of the largest network of girls and women in the world, there’s no limit to what she can accomplish.

On My Honor

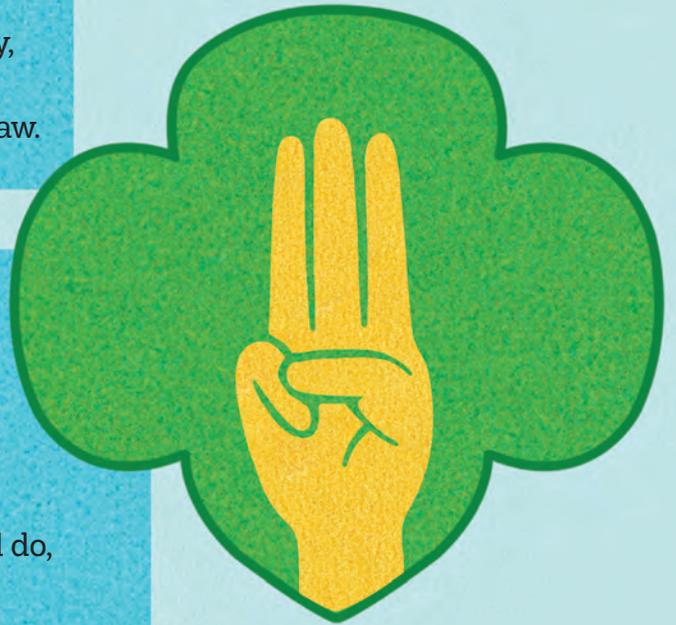

Girl Scouts' values are laid out in our Promise and Law, which members of all levels recite. The Girl Scout Family Promise is a commitment your family can make in support of your girl as she grows as a leader and makes the world a better place.

Girl Scout Promise

On my honor, I will try:
To serve God* and my country,
To help people at all times,
And to live by the Girl Scout Law.

Girl Scout Law

I will do my best to be honest and fair,
friendly and helpful,
considerate and caring,
courageous and strong, and responsible for what I say and do,
and to
respect myself and others,
respect authority,
use resources wisely,
make the world a better place, and be a sister to every Girl Scout.

Girls make the Girl Scout Sign when saying the Promise. Try it by holding up your right hand like this.

Girl Scout Family Promise

On my honor, I will try:
To support my Girl Scout
And her troop,
To help girls lead at all times,
And to always keep it fun!

Bring the Strength and Magic of Girl Scouts Home

We've got your back when it comes to teaching your girl positive values! Read on for examples of the standards your girl agrees to through the Girl Scout Law, and simple ways to amplify them even more in your own family.

Be Honest Lying is a natural (and normal!) thing for kids to do, so it's nearly inevitable that your girl will fib at some point. If your daughter has lied, calmly ask her what or who may have been hurt by it. If she's too young to understand, walk her through how her actions might have affected others.

Be Fair When your girl identifies something that's unfair, ask her to explain what a better solution would look like and how it would work. There may be several ways to solve the same problem, so help her think through as many as she can come up with and decide which one she thinks is the most fair for all involved.

Be Friendly and Helpful Encourage all family members to look for ways to help around the house. Rotate chores so everyone's contributing equally and nothing's seen as a "boy" or "girl" task. Your girl may not love trash day or dish duty, but it will give her pride in a job well done and build her appreciation for helpers in her life.

Be Considerate and Caring Model thoughtfulness for your girl by asking about her feelings and truly listening when she answers. Discuss the importance of putting yourself in someone else's shoes and trying to understand their point of view before deciding how to react in any given situation.

Be Courageous and Strong

Talk to her about a time when you were nervous about speaking up for what you believed was right but did it anyway. Ask if she's ever been in a similar situation and how it went, then remind her that sometimes we have to be brave to make a difference.

Be Responsible for What She Says and Does When you notice not-so-awesome behavior in your girl, take time to talk with her about it and understand what's going on rather than simply punishing her for her actions. Talking about her actions and why she takes them will help her do better next time.

Her life can be complicated—raising her doesn't have to be. Check out Raising Awesome Girls at girlscouts.org/raising-girls for the latest tips and insight into her world.

Where Do Badges and Patches Go?

Your girl's tunic, sash, or vest will display her badges, pins, and awards, reflecting the skills she's learned and experiences she's had as a Girl Scout. Her flag patch, council ID, and troop numbers belong on the front, starting at the top. Badges and Journey awards also go on the front, starting at the bottom. On a sash, badges go below Journey awards. On a vest, insignia and badges belong on the right-hand side, Journey awards on the left. Fun patches from experiences and trips always go on the back. Need more help? Check out girlscouts.org/placement.

We Want to Honor Your Girl!

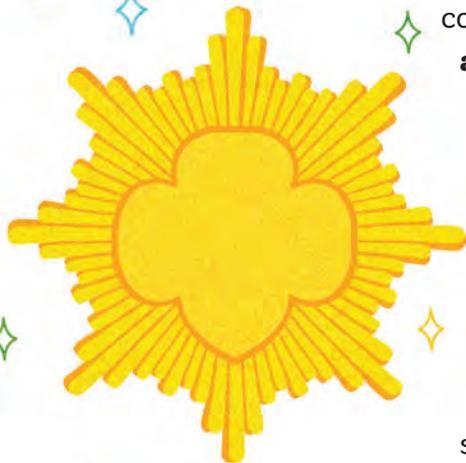

All Girl Scouts go above and beyond to make a difference through service leadership. And the skills and experiences they gain along the way set them up for special recognition through the Gold, Silver, and Bronze Awards.

Gold Award Gold Award Girl Scouts are the dreamers and doers who take “make the world a better place” to the next level. The Gold Award® is the most prestigious award in the world for girls—and it's only available through Girl Scouts! Think of it as a gold key that can open her world up to scholarships, preferred admission tracks for college, and amazing career opportunities. To earn this unique award, Seniors and Ambassadors provide sustainable solutions to society's biggest challenges and make a personal and meaningful impact on the world.

Silver Award cadettes test their leadership potential by doing research and taking action on an issue of their choice. Through their commitment to service, girls gain the confidence and skills that will catapult them to Gold Award success—all while creating positive change.

Bronze Award Juniors gain important leadership skills and learn that even seemingly small actions can make a lasting impact.

For more information on how to go for the Girl Scout Gold, Silver, and Bronze Awards—and to read inspiring stories of the improvements girls who've earned them have made to our world—go to girlscouts.org/highest-awards.

Make Her Troop Year Memorable

Consider this the ultimate cheat sheet to being an all-star G.I.R.L. supporter—no matter how busy you may be! When you step up, you're enhancing the troop experience and modeling leadership for your girl. She'll be prouder than ever to call you hers.

In 15 minutes a week, you could...

Organize and manage the calendar for troop snacks or carpools. Keeping track of who's contributing what and when will make meetings go smoothly for everyone.

In 30 minutes a week, you could...

Manage troop communications. This can mean anything from texting other families to confirm meeting dates, to maintaining the troop's social media account or being in charge of a phone tree.

In 45 minutes a week, you could...

Take photos or videos at troop meetings and Girl Scout events. Make sure the troop has signed council photo releases before snapping and sharing images!

In 1-2 hours a week, you could...

Lead part of a troop meeting or guide the girls through earning a specific badge. You can introduce the girls to a topic that you specialize in or explore a new activity and learn alongside the troop.

In 2-3 hours a week during cookie season, you could...

Organize booth sales and keep track of cookie orders. You'll be playing a key part in the Girl Scout Cookie Program®, which raises funds for troop activities and teaches girls important leadership skills.

Ready to pitch in?

Contact your girl's troop leader and tell her exactly how you'd like to help or what you can provide. Simply offering "whatever you need" comes with best intentions, but troop leaders are often too busy to assign out roles to family members. Being specific about how you can contribute will be so appreciated!

Want to give her the ultimate Girl Scout experience? Invest in her future and make every moment a shared memory by becoming an adult member at girlscouts.org/join.

Juliette Gordon Low founded Girl Scouts in 1912. You can find a painting of her in the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, DC!

Is your girl close to meeting her cookie goal? Ask her about her business techniques and how she and her troop want to use the money they earn.

Girl Scouts and Girl Guides in 150 countries across the globe celebrate World Thinking Day each February 22. Activities include learning about how girls around the world live and thinking of ways to improve the lives of Girl Scouts near and far.

Girl Scouts was founded on March 12, 1912—and it's Girl Scout tradition to celebrate all week long! Check in with your council for fun activities and events.

Did you know troop leaders are volunteers? They give their time and energy to Girl Scouts just because they care. Ask your girl if there's a special way she'd like to thank her leaders for all they do. Maybe she'd like to draw a picture, send a card, or even write a song!

When a girl graduates from one level of Girl Scouts to the next, she takes part in a bridging ceremony to celebrate her achievements and look forward to the adventures that await her.

The first recipe for s'mores appeared in a Girl Scout camping guide nearly 100 years ago! Celebrate by whipping up a few of these iconic treats at home.

Girl Scouting All Day,

Every Girl Scout troop spends time outdoors; testing the latest in science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM); learning to run a business; and gaining invaluable life skills that will see them through thick and thin. But there's no reason for the fun and learning to end when the troop meeting does! Use these pages as a cheat sheet to bring the adventures of Girl Scouting to your home.

Get Some Fresh Air

Outdoor adventures have always been an important part of Girl Scouting. Beyond helping girls understand and appreciate the need to protect the earth, time spent outside helps girls thrive physically, emotionally, and intellectually. Get outside with your girl, Girl Scout style, with these easy but meaningful experiences.

- Have a photo scavenger hunt
You'll learn more about your town and have fun trying different photography techniques.
- Plant something and track its growth
Nurturing a plant takes patience and dedication, and teaches her about her natural environment.
- Stargaze and point out constellations
Thinking about our place in the universe sparks imagination and can put things in perspective.
- Volunteer to walk dogs from a shelter
Helping pups in need teaches girls responsibility and underscores the importance of giving back.

Help Her Soar with STEM

Studies show that girls are more likely to go into STEM fields if they have STEM role models—or even just see STEM role models in the media they consume.

How can you help? Think about the books your daughter reads and the movies she watches. What roles do girls and women play? When there are scientists, builders, or tech geniuses in a story, are they female?

From kid-friendly books about astronaut Mae Jemison and architect Zaha Hadid to documentaries about primatologist Jane Goodall and computer scientist Grace Hopper, there are tons of books, movies, and online videos featuring amazing women in STEM. Need help finding them? Ask your librarian!

Sign Her Up for Girl Scout Camp

It's an adventure like no other! In the all-girl environment, girls feel more comfortable trying new activities, and they get to take the lead every single time. Check the calendar on page 9 to find out how to register.

Every Day

Be Her Cookie Champion

All Girl Scouts have the chance to learn business skills like goal setting and money management through the Girl Scout Cookie Program, but did you know it's the largest girl-led entrepreneurial program in the world? Here are a few things you can say to support her as she learns how to be a boss!

When she says she's nervous about the cookie booth sale...

"You know what will make you feel better? Practice. Let's come up with questions customers might ask you—like what your favorite cookie is and what your troop will do with the money earned. Then we can practice answering!"

When she wants you to collect orders at work...

"Let's find a way for you to still make the sale, even though you won't be there. Maybe you could make a poster or a short video to attract customers and tell them about your troop's Take Action projects. I'll take it to the office with your order form!"

When your older girl says customers would rather buy cookies from "little" girls...

"Daisies and Brownies do get a lot of attention—but you have years of experience and business skills on your side! Let's think about what you can do to make your cookie business stand out from the crowd."

Learning Life Skills Starts Now

Girl Scouting has a strong focus on civic engagement, wellness, communication, healthy relationships, and other practical life skills. You can help her learn to take care of herself and others through simple and fun family activities at home. Responsibilities like feeding and cleaning up after a pet, helping to plan dinner menus, saving and budgeting for her own birthday party, and learning first aid techniques she could use in case of emergency teach her important skills that will help her live her best life.

My Girl Scout Adventures

Your Girl Scout memories are one of a kind! When you take a cool trip, learn something new, earn a badge or award, or do one of the activities from this booklet with your family, mark it down here so you can remember it forever. At the end of the year, and in years to come, you'll look back on these accomplishments with pride.

My Girl Scout Support Crew

When someone helps you on your Girl Scout adventures this year, add their name here with a note about what they did. You might want to include your troop leaders, an auntie who takes you to meetings, or the neighbor who orders lots of cookies. At the end of the year, check the list and send thank-you notes to all your awesome helpers!

Peek into Her Future

When you think of who your girl will be a year from now or even ten years from now, you likely picture a confident thinker and doer, someone who does her best and makes the world a better place. Basically? You're picturing her as a Girl Scout. Not just this year, but next year and beyond. That's a good thing, because the longer she's in Girl Scouts, the brighter her future will be.

While all Girl Scouts benefit from our programming, studies show alums who participated in Girl Scouts for three or more years are significantly more likely to:

- Have a positive sense of self
- Be civically engaged
- Achieve higher education and income
- Practice leadership
- Have healthy relationships
- Feel satisfied with their lives

Who could want more for their girl? Secure her spot for the 2020–21 Girl Scout year and consider becoming an adult member at the same time! Head to girlscouts.org/join to learn when and how to sign up.
